Machineseeker EHF Champions League 2025/26 group phase back for fiery conclusion

The Machineseeker EHF Champions League 2025/26 group phase returns after more than two months — and crunch time has well and truly arrived. Over the four remaining rounds that promise plenty of high-stakes action, direct quarter-final tickets will be booked and play-off places clinched.

Ahead of round 11, four clubs are in promising positions to take those direct quarter-final places. Füchse Berlin and Aalborg Håndbold are the clear leaders on top of group A, while defending title holders SC Magdeburg and their predecessors on the podium Barça are even more comfortably atop group B.

Both groups see a similar situation below the leaders, with four clubs in each looking set to secure play-off tickets and two sides hoping to climb from the difficult positions they find themselves in ahead of the final rounds.

In group A, One Veszprém HC, Sporting Clube de Portugal, Industria Kielce and last season's third-place finishers HBC Nantes occupy positions three to six. Prior to round 11, there is a gap of five points between Veszprém and second-ranked Aalborg, and four points from Nantes in sixth to Kolstad in seventh. Below Kolstad, Dinamo Bucuresti count two points in their account and have a slim chance of progressing — but there is enough time and enough points available for either Dinamo or Kolstad to cause an upset.

In group B, the race for the play-offs is closer, while at the top, Magdeburg and Barça are all but sure of directly progressing to the quarter-finals. There are eight points between Magdeburg and third-ranked Orlen Wisla Plock, while Barça hold a six-point gap over the Polish side.

Plock, OTP Bank - PICK Szeged, GOG and Paris Saint- Germain enter round 11 in the play-off positions, but only two points separate PSG from seventh-ranked HC Eurofarm Pelister. HC Zagreb are bottom-placed with two points in what has been an exciting group phase that has seen every team collect points and only Magdeburg hold a perfect record of wins.

The individual scoring race ahead of round 11 sees PSG's Elohim Prandi on top with 84 goals and Füchse's Mathias Gidsel second with 83. During the break between rounds, both featured alongside numerous other Machineseeker EHF Champions League players at the Men's EHF EURO 2026. There, Gidsel led Denmark to their first Men's EHF EURO title in 14 years, finishing the championship as top scorer and earning the MVP award. Germany placed second, Croatia clinched bronze and Iceland placed fourth after their first semi-final in over a decade.

Now, the players return to their club jerseys and eye the next trophy.
